Dear Marc :

Many thanks once again for presenting "The Swindler's Art" at the Gallery at Victoria Hall last Wednesday evening. I enjoyed it thoroughly and it was obviously well received by the 35 to 40 people that attended.

As you know, we were very pleased to receive the offer of the lecture and to assist in making it happen in our public art gallery. Although I had no doubt the topic would attract interest, I was concerned that the timing of the event – so close to the holidays – would discourage attendance.

You should be very pleased with the presentation - it was strong, well-organized, informative and entertaining. Even from the last row of chairs, I could pick up every word and see the slides and posters clearly. From that vantage point, I could also pick up on the body language and can tell you that the audience remained interested throughout. I'm sure you received such comments from those that took the time to speak with you.

We thank you for your preparation and research and look forward to collaborating on future projects. Please feel free to pass along my comments to other sources.

Yours truly,

Dear Marc;

Harriet and I wish to express our appreciation for the excellent lecture you gave at Westmount Library, on fraud in art.

We admire your detailed knowledge in that specialized field, and fascinating illustrations. Please let us know if you will be giving any other lectures on this subject in future.

Sincerely,
